

History of the Haringay Passage

Part Five: Schools and the Passage

Fig. 1 (John Hinshelwood, 2007)

Fig. 2 (John Hinshelwood, 2007)

The Haringey Passage provides a safe walking route above the sewer between the houses on the Ladder. This is particularly valuable for children attending the two schools.

In 1976 the upper floors of the building were occupied by North Haringay junior school and the ground floor and extensions by the infants' school; recently it has amalgamated into a single school.

Haringay Board School, opened in 1893 (Fig. 1). From 1903 it was called North Haringay School and it was reorganised as a junior and infants school in 1934.

South Haringay Council junior and infants schools (Fig. 2), opened in 1904, above (west of) the Haringey Passage. Reorganisation in 1934 created a single junior mixed and infants school.

Below (east of) Haringey Passage was a new higher elementary and special instruction school for older children, which, in 1934, became a girls grammar school. In 1974 this became the infants school leaving the juniors in the building above the Haringey Passage.

Making
the Difference

This poster was published with support from the Haringey Council's Making a Difference Fund. For more details go to www.haringey.gov.uk

Copyright, John Hinshelwood. Printed and published by Haringey Council's Area Assembly Making the Difference scheme for the Healthy Passage for Haringay Group. 19701 • 02/2008.

Healthy
Haringay
Passage