Price:	Free
Event Description:	2020 marks two significant anniversaries in the history of the Anti-Apartheid Movement - sixty years since the exile of Oliver Tambo, later ANC leader, and thirty years since the release of Nelson Mandela, the first democratically elected President of South Africa. This talk by Nico Blackstock, of University of Southampton and local resident, focuses upon how these two events link to the local history of Haringey, the place where Tambo spent his exile in Muswell Hill and where Mandela came to visit his friend on multiple occasions. Using archive photographs, letters and accounts, the talk aims to illustrate a global history in our own local context.
