Highgate Neighbourhood Forum

A Highgate Neighbourhood Forum has been launched by local residents. The forum held its inaugural meeting in May and hopes to draw up a Neighbourhood Plan to help shape the future of Highgate. Organisers are calling on local residents to share their thoughts on how Highgate can be improved. For more information or to take part in the consultation, visit www.highgateneighbourhoodforum.org.uk, email admin@highgateneighbourhoodforum.org.uk or drop a note into the forum questionnaire boxes at the Highgate Literary and Scientific Institution or Jacksons Lane Community Centre.

Experts hail new fund

Leading innovation experts have praised Haringey's pioneering One Borough One Future fund.

The £1.2million fund – set up to inspire people to come forward with ideas to tackle inequality and deliver better services in the borough – was launched with an 'Innovation Summit' featuring guest speakers from leading think tanks.

One Borough One Future will support ideas which deliver changes to services and working practices; make creative use of resources; offer new ways to meet needs, and find practical ways of making Haringey a more equal place to live and work.

Geoff Mulgan, chief executive of innovations charity Nesta, said: "This is about getting quickly down to practical action which will make a difference to people's lives.

"The more you can do to tap into the brain power of people out there, you will almost certainly get better ideas. I hope these are small steps that have in sight the bigger ambitions that will be possible."

Richard Vize, contributing editor of the Guardian Local Government Network, said: "The One Borough One Future Fund takes guts, that's why it's the right thing to do. Innovation is a luxury when times are good, but it's essential when times are tough. It's the only way to meet the changing needs of communities."

Counting steps to school

Small steps make a big difference was the theme for this year's Walk to School Week, which started at Bruce Grove Primary School with a special visit from the walking mascot, Mr Croc.

The campaign this year involved pupils from around the country counting their steps to school and plotting them digitally on a map to see how far their steps could get them in one week – starting at Lands End and aiming to reach John O'Groats.

JOBS FOR HARINGEY

Six unemployed residents are enjoying the world of work thanks to Haringey Council's ground-breaking Jobs for Haringey project.

With backing from the Haringey Jobs Fund, the team of Tottenham residents last month started in new positions with Thorns, based in Brantwood Road, Tottenham.

Events supplies company Thorns was one of the first local companies to sign up to the council's ambitious scheme to tackle the jobs crisis head-on through support for new positions and help with training and employment support.

Further interviews for positions with Thorns are already in the pipeline, and interviews and working links with other companies are also being set up.

Iconic Carpet Right ready for return

A landmark building which became a devastating iconic image when it was set ablaze during the Tottenham riots will be re-built on the High Road.

Pictures of the burning Carpet Right building were shown across the world after it was razed to the ground in the riots.

But the 1930s shop will return to the corner of Tottenham High Road and Lansdowne Road after plans were approved by Haringey Council's planning committee.

Work starts this summer to reconstruct the building to its original design, with 26 new homes on three floors above the store.

Plans were welcomed by local residents and community groups including the Tottenham Civic Society and the Tottenham Conservation Area Advisory Committee.

The return of Carpet Right marks another of Haringey Council's 12 in 12 pledges to deliver regeneration to Tottenham throughout 2012.

IN BRIEF

Education Commission calls for evidence

Outstanding for All

Haringey Education Commission

Newly appointed chair of Haringey's independent Education Commission, Dame Anna Hassan, has asked pupils, parents, carers, teachers and governors to make their views known on education in the borough. The commission, Outstanding for All, has been tasked with finding radical proposals to accelerate the pace of school improvement in Haringey. The results of the survey questionnaire will feed into an initial set of recommendations to be tested by public consultation in September and October. For more information on the work of the commission go to www.outstandingforall.org.uk

Fighting climate change

Haringey Council has reaffirmed its commitment to carbon reduction following comments made by the Committee on Climate Change. The government's advisory body said local authorities should have a duty to combat climate change by helping to reduce CO₂ in areas including housing, traffic and waste. The council has already introduced a raft of carbon cutting measures as part of its commitment to reducing local carbon emissions by 40 per cent by 2020, including launching a Carbon Commission, increasing doorstep recycling and investing in solar panels for schools, council buildings and social housing.

IN BRIEF

New facilities unveiled

New sports facilities have been unveiled at Ducketts Common, Turnpike Lane. The facilities form part of a £250,000 refurbishment of the park and include a 5-a-side football, netball and volleyball pitch; full-sized basketball courts and practice baskets, and a 14-piece outdoor gym. Funding was raised through a partnership between Haringey Council, Friends of Ducketts Common and Groundwork London – who secured contributions from Sport England, Places People Play, the Mayor of London's Play Sport programme, the Big Lottery, the London Marathon Trust and Britvic's Transform Your Patch.

Sunshine powered grants for community action

Two community groups have been awarded Haringey 40:20 grants for projects to cut carbon emissions. The Haringey 40:20 Community Fund – part funded by solar power feed-in-tariff payments from panels in the Low Carbon Zone – will help schemes led by the Highgate Society and Tottenham's Selby Centre. The pioneering projects will help achieve the council's 40:20 ambition of reducing local carbon emissions by 40 per cent by 2020. For details click on www.haringey4020.org.uk

Oil converted to bio-fuel

A new venture to recycle cooking oil has been launched by Haringey Council.

Used cooking oil from care homes will be turned into environmentally friendly bio-fuel as part of the council's plans to reduce waste and cut carbon by 40 per cent by 2020.

The council is considering rolling out the service to other community buildings if the pilot with Tottenham-based recycling firm Renewergy is successful.

David Millward, who set up Renewergy in 2008, said: "We provide a general food waste recycling service for large and small catering businesses, from kitchen-to-compost. This arrangement with Haringey shows the council's commitment to sustainability."

Increased recycling goes east

Recycling services have improved for thousands more residents after Haringey Council's new waste collections moved eastwards in June.

Services will continue to include the weekly collection of food and gardening waste as well as dry recyclable materials.

There is also a free bulky waste collection for items that can be reused or recycled (including mattresses) and a new 240 litre wheelie bin so residents can recycle more on the doorstep.

To make the recycling of unused food easier, the council is also supplying free compostable bags to line kitchen caddies for six months.

Streets in Crouch End, Hornsey, Bounds Green, Noel Park and Woodside, as well as the whole of Stroud Green and West Green, most of Haringay and Bruce Grove and parts of St Ann's, White Hart Lane and Tottenham Green are the latest beneficiaries of the improved service.

Given the council is collecting the majority of waste every week, non-recyclables will be picked up every other week.

A recycling guide has been delivered to all households receiving the new service giving full details of how to recycle. More information can also be found at www.haringey.gov.uk/bincollection. Bin collection days remain the same.

Haringey's Annual Public Health Report

The Director of Public Health in Haringey, Dr Jeanelle deGruchy has recently launched the annual public health report for the borough.

'All food and no play... are Haringey's children healthy?' focuses on rising levels of childhood obesity, what can be done to reverse the trend, and how to recognise whether a child is a healthy weight.

In Haringey, more than one in five children aged four and five are overweight or very overweight (obese) and the figure rises as children get older. More than one in three children aged 10 and 11 are overweight or very overweight.

Childhood obesity can lead to weight problems in adult life, with associated risks including heart disease, cancer and diabetes.

The council and NHS are working together to help children grow up to be as healthy as possible through promoting healthy eating and exercise. If you have ideas about what more can be done, please contact Dr deGruchy on jeanelle.degruchy@haringey.gov.uk or visit www.haringey.gov.uk/publichealth

Big day out for Haringey pensioners

A group of Haringey pensioners enjoyed a continental outing to Paris. Forty-eight members of the Tottenham and Wood Green Pensioners' Action Group made the three-day trip to the French capital in June. The friends took in the sights of the city and made a trip to the spectacular Palace of Versailles. The group organises frequent activities and meetings for pensioners in Haringey, and new members are always welcome.

Paralympic torch bearing honour

A Tottenham school girl will carry the flame during the Paralympic Games Torch Relay.

Erica Kouassi, 16, a pupil at Hornsey School for Girls, was nominated to carry the torch in recognition of her fantastic contribution to school life – including being a sports leader and a dance leader.

Assistant headteacher Victoria Barulis said: "Erica's attainment, effort and determination are second to none. Erica embodies the spirit and vision of our school community and is a wonderful example of a youngster rising to the challenges facing teenagers today."

Erica, of Seven Sisters, said: "Carrying the torch means to me that a normal person from Tottenham can have her shining moment in front of family, friends and the rest of the world. I am greatly honoured and proud to say that I am a part of such a spectacular event."

The London 2012 Paralympic Torch Relay from August 24-29 will see separate flames lit in London, Belfast, Edinburgh and Cardiff before being united to create the Paralympic Flame at Stoke Mandeville. It will then be carried in a 24-hour relay to the opening ceremony of the Paralympic Games.

New service promotes independence

Moving forward for Tottenham

Council Leader Claire Kober shares her hopes for the future of Tottenham

Almost a year ago in these pages, I wrote of the devastation caused by the riots in Tottenham and their impact on local residents, traders and the wider Haringey community.

I also told how the fabulous response of the community – pitching in to support others and clean up their neighbourhoods – had lifted spirits.

And I made a promise that the council would focus its energies on building back better for Tottenham – on taking the chance to make it a place where people would be proud to live, work and invest.

In the months since the riots, we have seized every opportunity to make Tottenham a stronger, better, more successful area. You can read more about the work that has been done on page 21 of this magazine.

Our focus now is on building on the foundations already laid, and on changing the face of Tottenham for the future.

We are delighted that flagship stores such as Carpet Right, Aldi and the Post Office are returning to the High Road, and that landmark buildings including 639 High Road are being restored. But only getting Tottenham back to where it was before the riots tore through its heart is not enough. It has to be better.

We are determined that the rebuilding of Tottenham won't be a piecemeal approach. We are working on major master plans which will guarantee a joined-up approach to major regeneration – from the Spurs stadium-led redevelopment of north Tottenham to improvements to Tottenham Hale and efforts to make the High Road one of the most successful in London.

I'm proud of what we've achieved so far, but I am clear that making Tottenham the place it deserves to be won't happen overnight. Our vision is long-term, and it calls for major investment.

We're committed to investing in Tottenham, and we're committed to bringing others on board to also invest so that in five, 10, 15 and 20 years from now, Tottenham will be home to thriving businesses, successful schools and happy families with a stronger sense of community than ever before.

Young People

HARINGEY'S

HEALTH STRATEGY

Haringey People reports on the new three-year plan aimed at supporting young people in the borough to achieve their potential and make positive contributions to their communities.

Young people in Haringey face greater challenges than ever. Youth unemployment is at its highest in a decade; funding streams for post-16 study have been drastically altered, and reductions to youth services following government funding cuts, have left local teenagers feeling undervalued.

To find out how to better support young people, the council's Cabinet members and advisors asked youth workers to hit the streets and schools and talk directly with young people about their futures – and what support they need for a successful transition to young adulthood.

Bucking media portrayal of young people as disaffected and disengaged, over 600 young Haringey residents took the time to let the council know whether it had understood those early conversations and correctly identified their priorities.

Haringey's Youth Strategy was revised as a result of the feedback. One of the main changes was recognition that most young people said they want, and need, to feel safe in their communities – and not all of them do. The August riots compounded this feeling for many young residents.

Most young people also said that having 'priorities' is well and good, but what they want to see from the council is action.

Progress has already been made. An action plan is now being completed which sets out what the council and local partners are going to collectively deliver, how and when. One direct action is the increase to Bruce Grove Youth Centre's opening hours. Services run from the centre during 2011/12 reduced following unprecedented funding cuts by central government. The youth centre never closed, but feedback from young people showed huge support for making more use of the building.

Haringey's Youth Strategy will be launched this month. For further information on the Youth Strategy visit www.youthspace.haringey.gov.uk or follow us on Facebook at www.facebook.com/youthspace or on Twitter @haringeyyouth

Bruce Grove Youth Centre is open Tuesday to Friday evenings, with opening hours soon set to increase further.

- Tuesdays – 3-7.30pm. Highway Church Youth Club and Youth Café, and Haringey Wrestling Club
- Wednesdays – 6-8pm. Sanjuro (martial arts dance combat for young people with special educational needs)
- Thursdays – 4-7pm. Aspire (children in care council)
- Friday evenings for Young Carers

A summer activities programme for the youth centre has also been planned.

Carrying the flame for the Olympics in Haringey

The Olympic Games are just a few weeks away.

London 2012 will bring a carnival of colour and expectation as visitors from around the world come to watch athletes from more than 200 countries competing for the ultimate prize of an Olympic medal.

As a borough, Haringey captures the essence of London 2012 – in our multiculturalism; our tolerance; our endurance, and our readiness to rise and meet the challenges of our times.

And we can all get involved in making this once-in-a-lifetime event one to remember by lining local streets for the Torch Relay on July 25, just two days before the official opening ceremony.

The Olympic flame will be carried through the borough by inspirational torchbearers and the council is working to ensure this is a fantastic spectacle and family occasion to remember.

Local residents are invited to dress in white, line the route and show the world the community spirit that makes Haringey so special.

Throughout the Games, Haringey will be playing host to a number of cultural and community events to celebrate the Olympic spirit.

The council will do its best to make sure that Haringey's communities, businesses and young people can share in the Olympic legacy as London makes the most of a refreshed reputation and new investment in the wake of the Games.

LONDON 2012

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

Getting around during the Olympics

London's busy roads and transport networks will be even more packed than usual during the Games as tens of thousands of spectators flock to the capital.

Journeys are likely to take longer than usual, while key train and Tube "hotspots" will experience significant crowds and longer waiting times for trains.

National rail stations including Waterloo, London Bridge, St Pancras International, Stratford, Charlton, Greenwich and Blackheath will be exceptionally busy, while Tube hotspots will include Bank, Earls Court, London Bridge, Waterloo, Mile End and major interchanges such as Kings Cross.

In addition, roads throughout the capital will be extra busy and some roads will have dedicated Olympics lanes for use by athletes and Games VIPS only.

There will be road closures and disruption in Haringey for the Torch Relay on July 25. Most roads along the route will close for a short time only between 5-7pm, although traffic may be disrupted for much of the evening.

Alexandra Palace Way will be closed all day and the W3 bus will be diverted.

For more information about travel during the Olympics, visit www.getaheadofthegames.com

Trading on the Torch relay route

Olympic organisers LOCOG have warned that it is illegal to sell goods along the torch route without permission.

Anyone found selling goods along the route when the torch passes through Haringey on July 25 will be moved on, may have their items confiscated and could face prosecution.

The rules apply to any unlicensed traders on roads, and any gardens within seven metres of the road. Businesses which already have permission to trade from forecourts or stalls may continue to do so.

Council services

There are no planned changes to council services during the Olympics. Waste collections, street cleaning and parks maintenance will continue as usual and opening hours for customer service centres, libraries, leisure centres and council buildings will remain the same. The Community Alarms service will operate as usual. Any unforeseen changes to services will be highlighted on the council's website at www.haringey.gov.uk

Food standards

Olympic visitors can check hygiene standards using a new online system.

Haringey Council has used money from the Food Standard Agency's 2012 Olympic Grant Fund to introduce the Food Hygiene Rating Scheme. Rebuilding Tottenham

Tottenham - one year on

SUPPORTING THE COMMUNITY

Helping local residents, and in particular those worst affected by the riots, remains a priority for the council.

We have supported displaced families into temporary accommodation and worked with developers to ensure that people will be able to return to Tottenham once re-building works are complete. We look forward to welcoming residents home.

Through our support for the Tottenham Community Panel, we have guaranteed residents have a voice and made sure that their views and priorities are reflected in the council's work.

SUPPORTING BUSINESS

Local businesses are the lifeblood of the economy and council support has progressed from help in the immediate aftermath of the riots to ongoing efforts to help them to survive and flourish.

- We've backed the I Love Tottenham campaign to encourage people to shop locally, with events, t-shirts, badges, banners and bags.
- We've helped traders to relocate where necessary, including finding new premises for the much valued post office on the High Road.
- We've overseen a financial recovery package worth more than £2million – offering business rate relief to affected shops; handing out almost £390,000 across 187 businesses in small grants, and helping traders apply to the national High Street Fund and High Street Support Scheme.
- The council and the GLA will soon open an enterprise centre at 639 High Road to offer business advice and employment support. A temporary building is open in the car park at 639 to make use of the site ahead of restoration works being completed.

As the anniversary of last summer's riots approaches, Haringey People explains achievements – and looks forward to a better future for Tottenham.

BUILDING BACK BETTER

Fantastic progress has already been made on rebuilding Tottenham High Road, and so much more is still to come.

Planning applications were fast-tracked for works on the Carpet Right and Aldi sites. Construction is already underway at Aldi, which is set to re-open this autumn with a better, brighter design than the original store. Work at Carpet Right will start this month.

Work also begins this summer on a new supermarket to mark the first phase of the Northumberland Development Project – eventually delivering a new Spurs football stadium, shops, homes, restaurants, and leisure and community uses.

12 IN 2012

The ambitious 12 in 2012 pledges underpin the council's commitment to delivering positive change throughout the year so that you can see first-hand the work being done to improve Tottenham.

Pledges to launch a neighbourhood action team; increase activities at Bruce Grove Youth Centre; lead a Jobs for Haringey programme, and begin rebuilding on landmark sites have been delivered.

We have started consultation on improvements to Tottenham Green. Look out for the opening of the Ferry Lane multi-use games area and a host of fun events this summer.

Many more improvements are on the way this year and beyond as together we build a thriving Tottenham.

Haringey's Big Weekend

The Community pages are your platform - and we want to hear from you. If you have news, events, activities or pictures you'd like to share, please send them to the editor, Haringey People, Haringey Council, 8th Floor River Park House, 225 High Road, N22 8HQ or email sally.lowe@haringey.gov.uk

Haringey got into party spirit with festivities fit for a Queen during the Diamond Jubilee weekend.

Hundreds of schools and residents took part as the borough played host to more than 30 street parties – from Muswell Hill to Tottenham and Wood Green to Crouch End.

Many revellers celebrated the Jubilee with bunting, flags and fancy dress, while others chose to make the most of the long weekend to celebrate local community spirit with “not the Jubilee” gatherings.

Thanks to all readers who sent in pictures.

Residents of Ivy Gardens, Crouch End, enjoyed the best of the weekend's weather with their bunting-strewn Saturday party.

Peckish pupils from Lordship Lane Primary School tucked into a traditionally British feast of fish and chips and Jubilee jelly and ice cream.

Neighbours gathered in Wood Green for the Big Jubilee Lunch at Crescent Gardens, High Road. Highlights of the day included a tree planting ceremony and a chance to send personal messages to The Queen.

Lordship Lane pupils pulled on home-made crowns and gave a big wave to The Queen.

Mayor

Introducing the new Mayor of Haringey

Haringey's new Mayor, Cllr David Browne, has come a long way from the mining community in Rotherham where he was born in 1950.

His journey from working class school boy to university in York and Bristol led to jobs in teaching, journalism, marketing and almost 20 years in television broadcasting with the BBC.

And the new Mayor has no intention of resting on his laurels in his latest role – planning to use his Mayoralty to support local businesses and stimulate youth employment.

Cllr Browne said: "I am honoured to have been chosen as Mayor of Haringey during a historic and exciting year.

"We have a significant year ahead starting with the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. This prestigious international event is a chance to promote Haringey as a place to live, work and invest.

"I want to focus on promoting opportunities for vocational training for young people as well as cadets groups, scouts and other organised youth activities to help build character and self-confidence in our young people."

Cllr Browne served as Deputy Mayor last year and has already got his teeth into the role. "I saw this job as a two-year project," he says.

"Last year was the warm up if you like, a chance to get a feel for the job by hosting citizenships ceremonies and attending events to support my predecessor. As a result I'm well prepared and able to hit the ground running."

Cllr Browne's interest in being Mayor was fuelled by his later career in travel journalism and marketing.

"When I would visit a location, I always asked to meet the Mayor," he explains.

"There is something distinctive about this position wherever you go in the world and the Mayor is generally able to capture the character of a town or region better than any tour guide.

"I hope to be the ultimate ambassador for Haringey during my year as Mayor."

History

High Cross – the leaning tower of Tottenham

Tottenham's High Cross monument stands proudly in the heart of the High Road, close to the junction with Monument Way.

It has served as a landmark for many centuries and – while some debate remains about the length of its history – most agree it dates back at least to Roman times, when a wooden cross would likely have stood in the place of today's monument.

Yet despite its long history, the future of the monument was thrown into doubt in the early 1950s when the tower was found to be leaning so far over it was in danger of toppling.

It had been listing at a rate of an inch and a half each year and was leaning 19 inches – a strong gust of wind could have brought the tower crashing down.

In January 1952, Tottenham Borough engineers were monitoring the monument, amid fears that repairs may prove so costly that it would have to be pulled down.

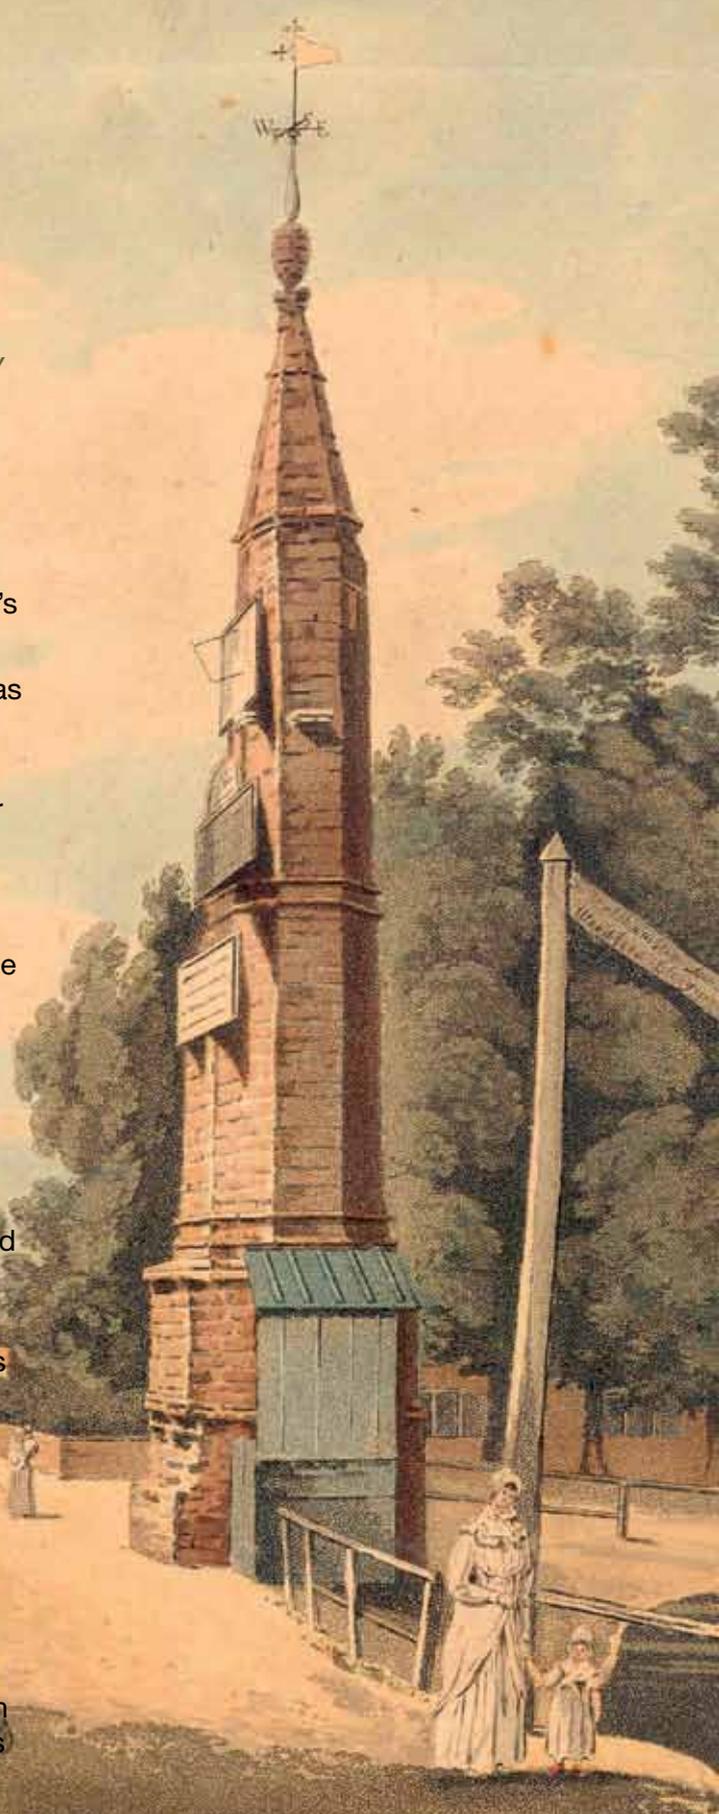

A very concerned G.S Groves wrote in the Tottenham Herald: "This cross has been a feature in Tottenham since Tottenham began. It has been cared for and preserved by the inhabitants for centuries. It is unthinkable that we now should allow it to be destroyed."

By July the same year, the £300 needed for the repairs had been secured and work was underway.

Residents gathered to watch the five-hour rescue operation, which saw four strong workmen using steel jacks inserted under the base of the monument to gradually bring it level.

The monument, which had previously stood without foundations, was supported on four steel girders fixed to concrete "legs" stretching 20 feet below ground. The base was embedded in a concrete plinth almost three feet thick.

Delighted onlookers breathed a sigh of relief as the tower straightened and local reports gave thanks to the brave efforts of workmen whose endeavours guaranteed that High Cross remains today as an important marker of Tottenham's history.

Have Your Say Haringey

CURRENT CONSULTATION

Dog Control Orders

Haringey Council is giving residents the opportunity to have their say on Dog Control Orders to target irresponsible pet owners.

The move follows complaints from the police, residents and Friends of Parks' groups of unruly behaviour by dogs in parks and other public spaces.

Proposals under consideration include:

- A borough-wide order on dog fouling
- A borough-wide order requiring owners to place dogs on leads where the dog is out of control or causing a nuisance
- An order to have dogs on leads on the public highway, publicly accessible land, some smaller parks or some areas where there are marked pitches (when in use)
- Exclusion of dogs from playgrounds and similar areas
- Orders to include land controlled by Homes For Haringey

Consultation runs until July 20. Full details can be found at www.haringey.gov.uk/dogcontrol
Queries can be emailed to frontline.consultation@haringey.gov.uk or call 020 8489 8420.

Day in the life

Tess Lancashire

Tess Lancashire was a vibrant young actor, enjoying life as a recently married mum-to-be, when a devastating stroke changed her life forever.

The force of the stroke left Tess suffering from epilepsy, memory problems and aphasia – a condition in which the language part of the brain is damaged – and also caused her to lose her unborn child.

Aged just 24 Tess, of Turnpike Lane, found herself heartbroken, confined to a hospital bed and uncertain of ever being able to walk or fully communicate again.

But her determination carried her through. Twenty-three years later, Tess is the proud mother of a teenage son, a published author and an advocator of aphasia awareness.

“I had no idea anything was wrong until it happened,” explains Tess.

“Afterwards I just wanted to get out of the wheelchair and be able to communicate.

“I had to find strategies to deal with what had happened. I could hardly go outside, but I had to dare myself. I can remember going to Ducketts Common and it seeming too far.”

From those nervous visits to her local park, Tess eventually found the courage to travel to the other side of the world. Her autobiography – Outback Uncovered – charts Tess’ journey through the Australian Bush with son Samuel and boyfriend Bernie.

Tess says: “I wanted to get away from everything and I couldn’t think of anywhere better than the outback of Australia to get my head back together again.

“I was all of a sudden in this vast expanse. You cope with it because you haven’t got any choice, it’s amazing what you can do when you have to.

“Throughout the trip, I kept notes on a dictaphone. The memory part of my brain has been damaged and I didn’t want to lose those memories.”

Working with friends from the City Lit and a student speech and language therapist from City University, Tess spent 10 years putting the book together from her recordings.

The accomplishment has made her eager to achieve more, and to raise understanding of aphasia through her role with Haringey Disability First Consortium – which brings together Haringey Race and Equality Council; Haringey Women’s Forum; Age UK Haringey, and the Citizens Advice Bureau.

“I want to spend as much time as I can working with people that have aphasia and giving them that confidence,” says Tess. “When something like this happens, you really know what life is worth.”
