Subject: Redesignation of Pinkham Way

Importance: High

In reference to Haringey's attempt to redesignate the Pinkham Way site as insustrial (LSIS) and therefore lower the site's ecological protection it seems that the proposal lacks any new evidence or explanation as to why the site should be redesignated from EL to LSIS. The fact that Haringey have admitted themselves that 'pre-application discussions' have influenced the redesignation leaves a very bad taste in the mouth; especially as there appears to be no clear evidence that other more appropriate alternatives have been considered. Pinkham Wood is one of only nine Haringey sites designated Grade 1 of Borough Importance for Nature Conservation and so redesignation would mean losing the wonderful biodiversity of the site and an extremely valuable and liked resource in such a built up area.

We are strongly against the redesignation of this site.
